The MSAN Institute is a two-day professional learning opportunity dedicated to growing our understanding of current research and district practices that further racial equity in schools.

For many years districts across the country have committed resources and have focused on educational equity endeavoring to make equity the foundation for all the work and decision-making that happens in schools. However, educators and researchers continue to grapple with how best to evaluate and measure effectiveness, especially for initiatives aimed to improve outcomes for students of color. At this year's MSAN Institute, we will build our collective knowledge base around MSAN's 2023-2024 focus area: Evaluating Equity Initiatives and Utilizing Data for Systems Change. Sessions will also include research-based strategies and promising practices that have demonstrated a positive impact on academic achievement, access, opportunity and sense of belonging for students of color. The Institute includes keynote speakers, breakout sessions, networking, and the highlight of the MSAN Institute— hearing from our amazing student equity leaders!

Suggested Audience

Teachers, principals, and district-level administrators (including directors of teaching and learning, equity directors, superintendents, and assistant superintendents), student services staff, and family engagement specialists.
